Soaring With The Hawk— Thom Christopher

Bumped into the exciting, deep-voiced Thom Christopher the other day. He plays the Hawk on "Buck Rogers," and in person has the same fascinating aura about him.

Thom and I chatted briefly. He told me about the enthusiastic fan mail he gets from sci-fi buffs. He's become rather an expert on the subject himself. In fact, he often lectures at schools and sci-fi conventions.

He told me that the Hawk is based on ancient stone sculptures found on Easter Island. There is a legend about them claiming a race of "bird people" actually existed on earth long ago but were destroyed by man. The Hawk is the last living member.

On a personal note, Thom was born in New York, graduated from the Performing Arts High School (the same one as in "Fame"), and continued his dramatic training at Ithaca College.
